Concerning Epidemics

In Epidemics the germ fastens most readily on fruitful soil—a system that is in poor condition.

Stoppage of food waste, and the resulting decay, generates poisons which are absorbed by the blood, lowering its power of resistance to withstand the attack of outside germs such as influenza.

In plain terms, constipation encourages Epidemics.

If you keep your intestinal passage clear and functioning regularly to get rid of this waste, your system will be kept in good condition to successfully cope with disease germs to which you may be exposed.

That is what the Nujol Treatment does—without straining, and without drawing on the vitality of other parts of the body, as do other forms of treatment.

In plain terms, Nujol discourages constipation and its dangerous consequences.

Keep your body clean inside with the Nujol Treatment. It is the best possible Sickness Prevention.

Nujol is sold by all druggists in bottles bearing the Nujol Trade Mark. Beware of products represented to be "the same as Nujol." You may suffer from substitutes.

MAKE PRODUCERS OF THE "USELESS MEMBERS" SAYS SECRETARY MEREDITH

BUSINESS MEN CALLED UPON TO GET RID OF EMPLOYEES WHO ADD TO COST OF DISTRIBUTING WHAT THE FARMER PRODUCES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—In answering questions of newspaper men today regarding means for reducing the high cost of living, Edwin T. Meredith, the newly installed secretary of agriculture, said that useless employees, no matter in what line they may be engaged, must be released from non-productive work and given an opportunity to become producers upon the farm or in the factory. If this is done and if jobbers and retailers recognize the harm that must ultimately come from profiteering on the farmer and content themselves with a reasonable profit, he said, the question of the high cost of living will largely solve itself to the permanent good of all. But unless the whole country—all business and all labor—does recognize this as a common problem and do the things necessary to solve it, he continued, "less and less will there be of farm produce to divide among the whole people and higher and higher will go the price of that which is produced."

"I am surprised," said Mr. Meredith, "that I should have received the number of messages I have, particularly from dairy farmers, asking what plans I, as secretary of agriculture, have to reduce the high cost of living, indicating that the general feeling is that this is essentially an agricultural problem. It is, of course, related to agriculture, but no more than to many other lines of activity, and I am tempted to believe that the solution of the problem lies more in the hands of those interested in distribution and non-productive enterprises than in the hands of the farmers of the country."

Give Farmer Satisfactory Conditions.

The farmers must certainly produce. They have produced and will produce—that is their business. They are on a piece measure basis, so given satisfactory conditions they will do their part, as the farmers of America have in every situation of crisis that has faced the country. But this question of "satisfactory conditions" is a big one. It is not a satisfactory condition for the farmer to receive reduced prices for his pork, wheat, hides, while the price of his machinery, lumber and shoes are raised. It does not conduce to a pleasant frame of mind on the part of the farmer or spur him to greater production to be obliged to sell his products for half or less than he later sees them sold for at retail. The dairy farmers of the country wonder if they are treated fairly when they receive thirty-five or forty cents for butter and see it retail at eighty-five cents. The poultry men wonder why, when they receive from forty cents to fifty cents for eggs, they retail as high as a dollar per dozen. The hog raisers wonder if they are not in a "hazardous" business when they buy fencing and all other supplies at greatly increased prices and then see their produce fall fifty per cent and sold by them at a actual loss, in answer to a demand for the price of the rest of the population for a reduced cost of living.

"The farmers of America," the new secretary went on, "are willing to assume their part of the responsibilities as American citizens in meeting any problem threatening the welfare and stability of our country, but this high cost of living problem is a mutual one, and they ask that it be approached by all the people as a common problem. They seek the co-operation, support and sympathy of the business world, and receiving it they will do their part and more. All of us working to this end are strengthening and making permanent agriculture, the foundation of our whole structure, and therefore doing well for our country as a whole. Every person, no matter in what walk of life he may be engaged, should have a sympathetic, helpful interest in agriculture, be helpful to the farmer, and see he gets a fair, square deal in all matters. Surely, such an attitude is an expression of the highest type of patriotism in peace."

All Must Strive for Cheaper Distribution

"Attention must be given by public-spirited citizens to the methods we tend to quicken and cheapen distribution of farm products, such as better terminal facilities, easier transfers, inland water transportation, back hauling and round-about routes eliminated. We must all interest ourselves in helping solve the problems of the farmer and furnish him facilities that will help him in his business. While such facilities must be furnished, we find on the contrary there is now being made an assault on the Farm Loan Bank, which gives the farmer money on favorable terms, without commissions, without renewal charges financing him to carry on the fundamental activity of our country, gives him long time that he may plan ahead where necessary. The assault is made by selfish interests and their success would, in my judgment, be a blow to agriculture in America and result in ultimate harm to all interests. But how many business men in America have recognized this as their problem, or interested themselves in the farmer's behalf? Very few, and yet they could well afford, in fact must, interest themselves in this and other problems affecting the farmer, or they will feel the reaction."

"The farmers of America are willing and anxious to meet the problem of reducing the cost of living as a mutual one. They seek the co-operation, support and sympathy of the business world, and receiving it they will do their part and more. All of us working to this end are strengthening and making permanent agriculture, the foundation of our whole structure, and therefore doing well for our country as a whole. Every person, no matter in what walk of life he may be engaged, should have a sympathetic, helpful interest in agriculture, be helpful to the farmer, and see he gets a fair, square deal in all matters. Surely, such an attitude is an expression of the highest type of patriotism in peace."

Put Useless Employees at Productive Work

"Business men must look to the operation of their establishments, no matter in what line they may be engaged, and see that no useless employee is retained to add to the cost of distributing what the farmer now produces. Useless employees must be released from non-productive work that they may go into productive work and add to the sum total that may be distributed among all."

"Let us enjoy in America as highly developed a system of distribution and in this I include all the professions, doctors, lawyers, teachers, as well as retailers, transportation, etc., as we now have, but let us cut out the useless member, the surplus one here and there, and give him an opportunity to become a producer upon the farm, or in the factory. Let us have six-tenths of our people in production and four-tenths in distribution, that there may be six-tenths of what a man can produce each day for each of us, rather than have four-tenths of what a man can produce each day for us. To do this conditions in production must be attractive, farming must be remunerative and offer to a young man who engages in it an opportunity equal to that offered him should he go into a bank, railroad, wholesale or retail establishment."

MEETING UTAH GAME GENERAL MANAGER IS OFFICIALS DEFERRED TO MEET WILSON COAL COMMISSIONERS INDEFINITELY

The announcement was made yesterday from the office of R. H. This was decided on yesterday by Mr. Siddoway, in view of the health situation, and for the reason that he has been unable, on account of sickness in his own family, to give the necessary attention to the preparation for the conference that it calls for.

The conference of game wardens of the United States bureau of biological survey, which has been called to meet in Salt Lake the same day, has not been postponed, according to a telegram from Washington, received yesterday.
